

NQT+1 Sticky Teaching and Learning

How to make learning stick, and how to ensure effective stretch and challenge

This training looks at achievable, imaginative and interesting ways to make learning memorable and effective for all pupils. It considers how teachers can develop metacognition in the classroom as a way of making this happen successfully.

It is important for good quality learning for all pupils to be engaged so the session also looks at ways of avoiding 'passengers' in the lesson. There needs to be effective pace and challenge for all learners. This session looks at practical ways to achieve this to ensure that all pupils are engaged and learning within the lesson. It considers practical ways to ensure progress and assessment within the lesson.

"Lots of useful strategies and ideas"
– Millfield School

Date: Friday 3rd December
Time: 9am – 3pm
Venue: Training Centre

Facilitator

Caroline Bentley-Davies is the author of four books on teaching and learning including the best-selling 'How to be an Amazing Teacher' which was reviewed by TES as 'the book that can help teachers become amazing'.

She has trained in schools across the UK. Her training is noted for being practical and engaging, she is motivated to help all teachers make their lessons and learning memorable for their students. For more information about Caroline please see: bentley-davies.co.uk

"Perfect training, Very Engaging"
– Glebelands School

To reserve your place, contact Jeanette Taylor-Perks on j.taylor-perks@jths.co.uk